TO	DATE AND MESSAGE (Continuation)
NN	6-15-70. I agree with Marion Johnson that a tremendous amount of time is wasted in trying to deal with a person like Weisberg, and its unfortunate that so much staff time has to be used for such limited productive results. It seems to me that whether we should ignore any or some of his letters is a matter of policy. I know that other agencies do, but since we have the Warren Commission records in our care it puts us in a somewhat different position, than the other agencies. We can be sure, however, that no matter what or how much we do for him we can only expect more accusations and more demands. Weisberg has seen all of the unrestricted material relating to Ferrie that is in the name file and as Marion Johnson says it isn't feasible to examine all of the other records of the Commission for any possible references to Ferrie. So far as numbered documents are concerned, there are references in the files showing that documents have been removed. There are no such charge out references in the files for unnumbered documents, nor do we have lists of such materials. The lists of restricted materials that we have made available to searchers concern only numbered documents. Johnson does not recall, however, of ever making any kind of list of documents relating to Ferrie available to Weisberg as stated in his letter. If we reply to Weisberg perhaps we should state that we have made available to him all of the unrestricted documents relating to Ferrie of which we have knowledge. I think his statement regarding "gutted" files should be ignored.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR FURTHER CONTINUATION - If a series of messages on one subject requires more than one page, front and back, continue it on additional sheets, consecutively numbered. Arrange all such sheets with page one on top and staple them together. Begin a new series for messages written after a different type of document is added to the dossier.

Perhaps for our own information we can come up with a rough estimate of the time involved in placing charges in the files for unnumbered documents that have been removed from the files and also discuss the consequences of so doing in dealing with problems that may arise with ~~searches~~ searchers if they have this information available to them.
